FOR NEXT GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA

ADJT. GEN. D. H. HASTINGS,

Subject to the decision of the Republican State Convention

EDITORIAL BRIEFS

SENATOR QUAY is expected to return from Florida the latter part of this week or the first of next.

WASHINGTON'S birthday was appropriately observed by Americans in Europe, assisted in not a few instances by Europeans.

THE House committee on Elections has recently given hearings to a number of southern republicans as to the necessity free Federal election law.

IT is stated at the Capitol to-day that the Senate committee on Finance has decided to report favorably the bill to increase the coinage of silver dollars to $4,000,000 a month.

THE anti-monopoly association has sent men here to oppose Postmaster, General Wanamakers postal telegraph scheme before the Congressional committees. This is the first open opposition that the idea has met with.

POSTMASTER WANAMAKER says that his assertion that it would not be safe for him to go to Athens, Ga., was a joke but the recent Southern outrages and indignities would have justified him in making the assertion in all earnestness.

WITH reference to the question, "Did Mr. Cleveland indulge in profane language on the night of election day, 1888?" it may be said that if he did he had some excuse for so doing. His majorities didn't rise, but probably his angry passions did.

THE schedules to be used in taking the census this year are a decided improvement upon those previously used; they are what is known as family schedules each of which will contain from one to ten names, instead of two hundred as in the last census.

LET the Ohio Democrats go on and gerry-mander Major McKinley out of his Congressional district. It is their privilege to sow the wind if they want to, but they will have to reap the whirl wind. The crop will be enough to last them for many a year.

EX-GOV. FORAKER, of Ohio, proposes to devote himself henceforth exclusively to finding the genuine documents upon which he believes the Woods forgery of the ballot-box contract was based. The country will be glad to see Foraker stick to his task.

CLAUS SPRECKLES, the Sugar king, made an argument before the House Ways and Means committee Thursday against lowering the tariff on sugar. He says the United States could easily raise beets enough to manufacture all the sugar consumed in this country.

SECRETARY WINDOM opened the sealed bids which had been received in answer to his advertisement for proposals for the exclusive rights to take seals in Alaskan waters for twenty years, last Friday. There were twelve bidders. The award has not yet been made. All of the bids are higher than the Government has received for this privilege for the last twenty years.

A BREWING company is negotiating for Valley Forge and there is danger that this renowned historic strip of land will be wiped out or thus over paid. There is pending in Congress a bill for the purchase of the historic buildings which were the headquarters of the army during the terrible winter of their occupation, and it should be made to cover everything needed to preserve everything that is desirable. A brewery anywhere else would be no one's business but the owner's; but one there would be a desecration.

ENGLAND will prosecute the idea of the dynamite gun, but it will do it with caution. Should the test that it is proposed to make with a single gun be satisfactory, it is reported that fifty will be ordered by the Pneumatic Dynamite Gun Factory, which is supposed to be in this country. It was probably with some such view that Secretary Tracy required of the Vesuvius the firing of dynamite shells before accepting it, to be followed in case the test was successful by an order for as many as the service should need.

OBJECTIONS ANSWERED.

A great ado has been made over certain sections of the McKinley Customs Administration bill, on the pretense that they deny the right of trial by jury. The real ground of opposition is not regard for any constitutional right, but it is based on a determination on the part of certain large importers to maintain a condition of things that will perpetuate existing abuses of the customs laws, whereby the treasury will be defrauded honest importers discriminated against and dishonest ones reap unfair advantages.

Attention is drawn to the fact that the clauses in the House bill now objected to are identical with those contained in a bill passed by the Senate two years ago, by a large non-partisan vote, including such Democrats as Mr. Beck, of Kentucky. In the debate that then took place it was shown by decisions of the Supreme Court, dating back as far as 1818, that an importer is not entitled to a jury trial, and, indeed is entitled to no trial in court at all, unless the Government chooses to provide for it by law. It has been expressly held that Congress may prescribe "the manner in which the duties shall be levied and the value of the goods shall be ascertained and the conditions upon which the importations shall be permitted." The debate referred to shows that the clauses now questioned were unanimously approved by the Senate Finance Committee, thus committing the ablest men of both parties in its favor. This is a complete answer to the constitutional objections which have been raised to the pending bill. The allegation that the right of jury trial exists at all in this case is a pretense and a sham.

Something About the Census.

From an article on the census compiled by the williamsport Republican, we make the following extracts:

From the latest authorities it appears that the eleven counties in the district are divided into election districts as follows:

Bradford	56	Lycoming	60
Cameron	7	Mckean	24
Centre	45	Potter	22
Clearfield	55	Sullivan	13
Clinton	31	Tioga	41
Elk	14
Total			371

It is likely that in some of the counties more districts will be found than are given in the table; and the work of grouping them so as to form convenient districts for the enumerators will not only require much study, but will be perplexing in the extreme. Until the work of grouping is done it cannot be told how many enumerators will be required, but it is believed that the number will reach 250. After a careful inquiry to ascertain the competency of the applicants they will be nominated by the Supervisor and approved by the Superintendent at Washington, when they will be commissioned and sworn into office. The appointments will be made about the first of April, when the appointees will receive their voluminous instructions and allowed one month to study them before beginning work on the first Monday of June. The enumeration must be completed during that month, and the appointees must perform their work, unless in case of sickness, under severe penalty for neglect or refusal. And for imparting information to any person not authorized to receive it, without the authority of the Superintendent, they can be arrested and tried, and if convicted fined $500—and for swearing falsely they can be imprisoned three years and fined $800.

The act of Congress authorizing the eleventh census is not only specific but severe in its provisions, and these accepting appointment will find it anything but an easy duty to perform. Enumerators must visit personally each dwelling house in their districts and each family therein, and each individual living out of a family in any place of abode, in order to secure the information required. Anyone refusing to answer the questions propounded shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined $100. Enumerators shall be selected solely with reference to fitness, but where all things are equal, preference hall be given to honorably discharged soldiers."

It may be noted as a curious fact that in the formation of this census district it covers not only the whole of the territory embraced in the Sixteenth Congressional district, but a part of the Fifteenth, Seventeenth, Twenty-seventh Twenty-eighth. As has been shown, the most populous county in the district according to the census of 1880 is Bradford with Lycoming next in order; but it is expected that the present census will show Lycoming to be in the lead, because of the great increase of population within her territory during the past five years.

The act of Congress fixes the pay of enumerators for the work assigned then in the field as follows:

	Cents.
Each living inhabitant	.02
Each death reported	.02
Each farm	.15
Each industry	.20
Each soldier, sailor or widow	.05

In addition to the above, specialists may be employed to perform certain work, the pay for which shall not be less than three, nor more than six dollars per day. A great many of these specialists are now at work gathering statistics relating to the iron, coal, mining and other industries of the country. It is probable that special agents will be employed to collect the statistics of lumber and oil in this district.

POINTS IN STATE POLITICS.

There is certain to be a lively contest for the Republican Senatorial nomination in the Susquehanna-Wayne district, this year. Senator Lines who now represents the district and will be a candidate for re-nomination, is from Susquehanna County, which has instructed for him, and Wayne has instructed for E. B. Hardenbergh, as its candidate. The latter county will renew the claim which it made so vigorously four years ago that it is entitled to the nomination.

J. H. DONLY, of Warren, has announced himself as a candidate for the Republican Senatorial nomination in the Warren-Venango district, now represented by Senator Orris C Allen. A number of members of the Warren bar signed a request to Mr. Donly to be a candidate. Senator Allen will seek a re-nomination.

In Luzerne County, the Democrats are feeling around for a good man to run for Congress. John B. Reynolds of Kingston, J. Ridgway Wright and Asa R Bruhdage, are among those canvassed. Senator William H Hines is a candidate, but there are a good many Democrats who do not take to him very warmly. Stanley Woodward who recently had congressional aspirations, will likely be re-nominated for judge.

THE report from Lancaster is that there is to be no opposition to the re-nomination of Congressman Brosius, at the April Republican primaries. That assures Mr. Brosius a second term.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Carlisle VOLUNTEER proposes A J Steinman of the Lancaster INTELLIGENCER for the Democratic nomination for Governor. It is a pretty good proposition and as an INTELLIGENCER man has just been elected Mayor of Lancaster, it ought to go.

THE GALLOWS.

It is not a pleasant record which tells of the execution of four murderers in a single day—but such was the number who went to the gallows last Thursday in this State alone. WILLIAM S. HOPKINS was hanged at Bellefonte for the double crime of murdering his wife and mother-inlaw; JACOB SCHOOP and THOMAS COLE, of Philadelphia, were executed on the scaffold, the former having murdered an acquaintance to get possession of $600 which he had saved through years of thrift, and the latter having beaten to death a roommate, whom he suspected of having caused him to lose his employment; and at Wilkesbarre WILLIAM BARTHOLOMEW suffered for a murder which was the sequel of a guilty love.

The above record is made all the more significant from the fact that Gov. Beaver same day attached his signature to five more death warrants, fixing the execution on the same day, April 9 next. Of these three will be in Western Pennsylvania—Charles Carter, of Cambria; Wm. H. Smith, of Allegheny, and Zach Taylor, of Greene, and another, Alfred Andrews, will be in Centre. When the number of murders are taken into account, the wonder is that the executions are not more numerous. If the law had been strictly enforced there would have been ten hangings to every one that has taken place during the last ten or fifteen years. Homicides multiply in a much greater ratio than the hangings, and so long as willful murder remains a capital crime it should be punished as such:—Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

GODEY, for March, is on our table in advance of all the other magazines, looking as fresh and beautiful as a rose at dewy morn. Its wide-awake publisher follows in the footsteps of its founder and is never parsimonious in money outlay to make the LADY'S BOOK better each succeeding month. Each number contains illustrations and matter that would cost, to buy separately, three times the price of the book. Only $2.00 a year. Godey Publishing Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE MILK IN THE COCOANUT.

There has been a great deal of talk during the last few days and many despatches from Washington in which forecasts have been given in relation to the probable action of the Ways and Means Committee on the sugar question, It is said that some Republican members favor taking the bull by the horns and making sugar free. It is thought that heroic treatment of this kind might receive the support even of some Democrats, who for so many years have become purple in the face in their denunciations on the stump of the cormorant sugar trust which has the poor man's sugar bowl in its grasp. Without venturing any prophecy the Press believes that a reasonable reduction in the duty on sugar is only right and just. It is proposed, we believe, to reduce the present duty on steel rails and some other manufactured articles. Certainly the same reasons which would suggest a reduction on the metal schedule could be applied with even greater force to the sugar schedule. It was not so very long ago that the sugar producers of the country informed the Tariff Commission that a duty of 45 per cent would give them adequate protection; and to-day the duty is nearer 85 per cent. Therefore it would seem reasonable and right that some reduction should be made.

It is said that the Kansas men and the beet-sugar men are objecting to this reduction. We do not think this is true, as the Press happens to know that the majority of the Ways and Means Committee is a unit for the reduction of the sugar duties, with the exception of the Hon. James McKenna, of California. The true milk in the cocoanut, so far as Republicans are concerned, is this: The opposition, strangely enough, does not come from American producers, but from foreign producers, and the object is not so much to bolster up the present sugar industry of the United States, or to create an important industry by the manufacture of beet sugar, but is, in fact, to continue the protection—about two cents per pound—for the large California investment in the Hawaiian Islands. So long as the present duty remains on sugar these California interests have what is equivalent to a bounty of two cents a pound. That is to say, their sugar is admitted free into this country, and all other sugar has to pay duty. As a matter of fact, the price of sugar on the Pacific coast is certainly as high, if not a little higher, to the consumer than it is in the East. The principal opposition, therefore, to the reduction of the duty on sugar on the Republican side comes from California, and we have no doubt that the eloquence and persuasive powers of Mr. McKinley will be able to convince the member from the Golden State that the interests of the masses of the people will be better served by a consent at any rate to a reasonable reduction, if free sugar is not desirable or practicable at this time.—Philadelphia Press.

That Tariff Victory.

The vote in the late Judge KELLEY'S district is still the subject of controversy. The Democratic organs are not willing to concede that the election of Mr. REYBURN was a protection victory. The Times compared the vote cast for Mr. REYBURN and that which Solicitor WARWICK received in the district, and shows that the former "ran behind his party ticket" to the extent of 2,900 votes. It further declares that "any candidate less, respected and popular and less equipped with all needed political resources, would have been 5,000 behind his party vote.

This is juggling with figures and mere speculation. The fact is Mr. REYBURN "got there" by an unprecedented majority, all things considered, after a hot contest on a square issue of free trade and protection. The Philadelphia Press says: "A striking or unexpected feature of the Fourth District Congressional contest is the fact that Mr. REYBURN received a larger percentage of the total vote cast than Judge KELLEY in his walkover in 1888. Mr AYRES was the contesting candidate in both instances. In the contest—which closed in an overwhelming Republican victory and the election of Mr. REYBURN—the personal merits of the respective candidates were secondary considerations. The main issue selected and interjected into the canvass by Mr. AYRES and his friends was free wool. This was the issue which the Democratic candidate elected to run on in a district largely interested in the manufacture of woolens. To the surprise of even the most sanguine Republicans Mr. AYRES, who polled 41.4 of the total vote when he ran against Judge KELLEY, was able to secure less than 40 per cent. on a free-wool issue against Mr. JOHN E. REYBURN."

WEALTH AND PROGRESS.

From Straight Tips.

Wealth is a good thing in itself. It is that for which we all strive. It is the mission of man to supply his wants by applying his energies in certain directions and creating that which he needs, and that which is the product of his labor is wealth.

Wealth then is what we all desire, and the getting of which should be done fairly, honestly and honorably. There should be nothing in its getting to mar the peace and harmony of civilization.

But wealth unjustly obtained and wrongfully used is perhaps one of the most dangerous things in civilization. Accumulated to the point of ostentation, begins a moral and industrial rot in its victims. It sows the seed of mendicancy in those whom it robs, and breeds the worst kinds of pauperism and crime.

When Nero had completed his palace he said: "Now I will live like a man." We know it was the beginning of his fall. We are entering upon the threshold of our second century as a nation, but we are being confronted with the same paradox which has proven the coral reef upon which the ship of state of gone-by nations has again and again gone to pieces. This great problem which confronts us to-day must be solved, and it is very gratifying to note that our finest thinkers are devoting their lives to it. It is a field worthy of the greatest genius, and fame and glory await him who shows the way to go.

PROGRESS is attained only as the result of mental effort and expenditure, and as there can be no equality in the amount of effort, mental or otherwise, put forth by man, we cannot all attain alike. But in so far as social privileges are concerned, we should meet upon equal footing. Our social system should rest upon a basis of equality, so that all might at least have equal chances of attainment. Nature has implanted in the mind of man the consciousness of an essential principle inherent with his existence, that of equality. Nature is true to all alike. Man is born into the world naked and helpless upon one common plan of equality, and at death we find that the lines of class and race distinction laid down in life are leveled and obliterated. If then divine creation intended a plan of common equality among men, it is obvious that the true purpose of life admits of no distinction, except in the point of mental attainment and efficiency It then follows that society alone is responsible for the social inequalities that breed so much vice and degradation to-day.

The class distinctions which produce social barriers, and the financial distinction which appears to be widening the already impassable gulf between rich and poor, are evils which must always operate for the destruction of the best interests of civilization, and are not in accord with the civilization, and are not in accord with the true teachings of nature.

COLONEL MCCLURE gets some comfort out of the result in the Fourth Congressional District. He confidently asserts that if the Republican majority can be reduced a few votes at each election that the whole 8000 or 10,000 majority can be wiped out in the course of time. Colonel McClure does not often fortify himself with so much all-wool logic as sticks out all over this happy felicitation. Many things may occur in the course of the next fifty or sixty years. It is not half a century since Colonel McClure was a Protectionist, and he may get back again before another half century rolls around. The indications are, however, that the Fourth Congressional District has no flippant notion of changing its views on the tariff.

MILLIONS FOR THE FAIR.

New York Press.

The New York bid for the World's Fair is $15,000,000 in cold cash. It is presented at Washington by gentlemen whose names represent an aggregate individual and corporate wealth mounting up into the billions. They guarantee to the country the success of the fair if located here. When the subscriptions to the $5,000,000 Guarantee Fund were lagging the Chicago papers facetiously told us that "money talks." Well, money does talk.

NEW YORK VETERANS.

Lively Time Expected at the Encampment in Syracuse.

WHO WILL BE COMMANDER?

A Contest Between "Hayseeds" and "Silk Stockings"—The New Grant Memorial Project—The Bath Soldiers' Home—The Service Pension.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—At the encampment in Syracuse on the 26th and 27th of this month the Grand Army boys of New York propose to make things lively in fighting over again the contest of the last three years on the question of department commander. It is a contest between "hayseeds" and "silk stockings," the "bhoys" and the "aristocrats," the "city" and the "country," as the parties express their favorite terms of classification. Over 40,000 comrades are interested, and the more it is prolonged the fiercer it wages. "Shall New York city have the state commander?" is the way many agitators put the problem. It is so long since the metropolis had the honor that thousands of active Grand Army men do not know how it would seem.

To elect a comrade from the city it is necessary to combine local strength with some element up in the state; for the posts of New York and Brooklyn together do not have a delegation strong enough to elect a commander. For the past two campaigns this delegation has been divided, New York and Brooklyn presenting each a candidate. Last year Brooklyn presented the name of Joseph W. Kay, of Winchester post, who ran the year before. New York presented Floyd Clarkson, of Lafayette post, and he lacked only six votes. These comrades are in the canvass again for 1890, and in addition Washington post, of New York, will name Gen. Martin T. McMahon, who was adjutant general of the old Sixth corps.

The Retiring Commander.

Harrison Clark, the retiring commander, has enjoyed the exceptional honor of having led the department column in the centennial parade, and the roster of posts and of comrades has perceptibly increased during his administration. At the centennial New York was represented by the New York and Brooklyn posts and some from the adjoining counties, and also by a special column composed of two comrades from each post in the state and acting as escort to the commander. The boys have not forgotten that in this celebration the veteran ranks were denied the right of the line, and will undoubtedly pay their respects to the committee whom they hold responsible for it by suitable resolutions.

There will be plenty to talk about at the Syracuse encampment besides bygones. The service pension measure is loudly called for in New York state; the basis of representation in the national encampment does not suit the comrades and they smart over the defeat of their pet reform project at the Milwaukee encampment of 1889, where the amendment to the rules abolishing life delegates was snowed under; the home at Bath needs more room, and the Grant memorial project is knocking for recognition.

What the Comrades Complain Of.

What the comrades complain of in the personnel of the national body is the system of allowing department commanders and others to hold their seats and have a voice in the encampment after they have ceased to hold office. As it is now, the legislative body is like what congress would be if it were consolidated into one house and the governors and ex-governors of states were entitled to a place in the delegation.

The Bath Soldiers' home is crowded, notwithstanding a recent enlargement, and the board of managers is before the legislature for an increase of appropriation. The home, which owes its existence to the Grand Army, is a popular place for veterans in distress, as the applicants far exceed the places at disposal. The bill of fare of a recent Sunday dinner certainly looks like a long remove from army rations and ordinary contract diet. It was: Roast turkey, cranberry sauce, boiled onions, mashed potatoes, bread and butter, coffee, mince pie and cheese.

Grant's Memorial.

The Grant memorial project, which will be considered at Syracuse, is a plan to raise the funds still required to complete the work of the citizens' committee. This committee has raised $130,000 and wants $270,000 more. Contributions have virtually ceased, and the question is whether to abandon the scheme, go on with the funds in hand, or wait for additions. Some time ago Gen. Egbert L. Viele, of Lafayette post, New York city, brought the matter up in the post councils and it was decided to cooperate with the citizens. A conference was requested with the posts of the department, and on the 9th of December last the hall of the Sixty-ninth regiment armory was filled with delegates fairly representing the department, who came to join hands with Lafayette post.

Ex-Governor Cornell, of the citizens' committee, explained to the conference the present condition of the fund and displayed a design which the committee favored, and which had the advantage that it could be carried out in parts if necessary. It consists of a monument tower, hall and crypt. The original plan was a million dollar memorial, but if this design should be adopted a quarter of a million would suffice to begin with.

Gen. Viele stated to the conference that the Grand Army comrades would not be asked to contribute cash, but to unite in some general action to raise subscriptions. The following resolutions were passed by the conference, and the committee authorized by them and selected by the chairman, Gen. Viele, will attend the Syracuse encampment to carry out their spirit:

The Resolutions.

Resolved, That we urge upon the trustees of the Grant Monument association the importance of adopting some general plan of building under which at least that portion of it appropriated for the tomb may be at once commenced and completed at an early day.

Resolved, That we recommend to our respective posts that upon the adoption of such a plan standing committees be appointed by each post in the Department of New York to raise funds by voluntary subscription, or otherwise, from the patriotic citizens of their several localities for the purpose of increasing the amount now on hand.

Resolved, That a committee of seven, of which the chairman and secretary shall be members, be appointed to formally present these resolutions to the next state encampment, and urge official action and co-operation; and the setting aside of Sunday, April 27, 1890 (Gen. Grant's birthday), for the purpose of initiating the movement by the comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic of the state of New York.

A topic which will probably come before the encampment is that of encouraging the Sons of Veterans, the order of juniors now becoming prosperous in this state. Since the consolidation of the rival systems of Sons, new societies have been added, harmony is well nigh complete, and 40,000 grizzled veterans of the Grand Army may expect to see 40,000 cadets in the field, keeping time to the same old music by the year of the World's fair, 1892.

EUROPEAN NEWS.

The Effect of the German Elections on the Emperor.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—A prominent Socialist sojourning in London because of having become obnoxious to the authorities of Germany, in the course of discussion of the German elections says: "The emperor's labor rescripts were simply the beginning of a deep game of bluff. The decrees were well timed to suit the ends of the kaiser in having been issued on the eve of a general election. He professes great solicitude for the welfare and further benefit of the workingmen, and invites the other powers to send delegates to a grand European labor conference to decide what is the best course to be pursued to lift the laborer from his present degraded position.

No Remedy from the State.

"As far as possible, and to a great extent it will be possible, the German government will influence the Social leanings of the delegates. After prolonged deliberation the conference will find that the Social Democrats were altogether wrong; that whatever grievances may exist are far beyond the power of the state to remedy; that the standard of wages is as high as the existing condition of trade and commerce will warrant, and that the very best that can be done for the workingman is to pass insurance and other benevolent measures for his relief.

The Emperor Not Sincere.

"This will leave the situation precisely where the emperor found it, but he will have gained the credit of having honestly and earnestly tried to benefit the proletariat at the expense of the state, while the other powers are committed to the decision that nothing can be done to ameliorate their condition.

"This finding being promulgated, the kaiser, feeling that something else must be resorted to to benefit somebody or something, will turn his attention to the Socialists and endeavor to relieve the ills and woes of mankind by suppressing that organization.

Effect of the Elections.

"The result of the elections, however must be disheartening to the amateur philanthropist, and will doubtless compel a sweeping change in the programme he mapped out, but did not promulgate."

The Pope as an Arbitrator.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The Standard's Rome correspondent says that persistent efforts are making in the Vatican to secure an understating of the influence of the Berlin labor conference, but without success thus far. The correspondent also asserts that secret negotiations have been in progress to induce the Portuguese government to propose that the pope shall arbitrate the dispute between Portugal and England, but have failed.

An Election Riot.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—A serious election riot occurred in the streets here. A parade of Socialists bent on celebrating their splendid victories collided with a body of police. A mounted policeman was dragged from his horse and terribly beaten, his legs being broken. The poor fellow was carried into the policemen's shelter in the Blumen-Strasse, which was subsequently demolished by the mob.

Denounced The Times.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Mr. William S. Cain, Unionist member of parliament for Barrow-in-Furness, has written a letter to his constituents wherein he says he cannot find language strong enough to express his horror of the conspiracy against Mr. Parnell or his opinion of the conduct of The Times in lending itself to infamous libels upon the flimsiest evidence of their supposed genuineness.

Leprosy Spreading.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Leprosy is making terrible progress in New Caledonia, and there are now over 3,000 cases among the natives and convicts. A dispatch from Paris says that Louise Michel, the noted Anarchist, has announced her intention of going to New Caledonia as a nurse.

Strikers Threaten Violence.

DISASTER ON THE RAILS.

One Man Scalded to Death and Three Others Badly Injured—A Man's Head Cut from His Body—Man and Horse Killed by Lightning.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 22.—The heavy rains of Wednesday night and yesterday morning raised the two rivers considerably, the Conemaugh being within six inches of overflowing and the Stony creek two feet.

A telegram from Shado, about twelve miles up the valley, has just been received, announcing that the boom at that place, containing an enormous quantity of logs, is liable to break at any time.

If this breaks, all the wooden bridges on the Stony creek will be destroyed. The water is falling slightly now, but the danger is not yet over.

Scalded to Death.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 22.—Near Cape Point mills a plow engine and four other locomotives were thrown from the track by a broken rail. Two locomotives and the plow engine were carried down a bank fifty feet.

A Horrible Accident.

CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 22.—A horrible accident occurred this morning at Woodbury. THE POLISH CHURCH WAR.

C. H. Nowak, Vice Censor of the Polish Alliance, to Be Arrested.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 22.—A warrant has been issued on behalf of the congregation of St. Adelbert's (Polish) parish for the arrest of C. H. Nowak, of Mount Pleasant, Pa., vice censor of the Polish National alliance, on a charge of appropriating to his own use $800 of the funds of the congregation. The offense constitutes grand larceny in the first degree.

Some time ago the money in question was subscribed by the congregation for the purpose of sending two delegates to Rome to ask the pope's interference in the difficulty pending between the parishioners and Bishop Ryan with regard to the removal of their priest, Father Klawitter.

Mr. Nowak and Father Cichocki, of Pittsburg, were the delegates selected. Ministerial duties prevented the priest from undertaking the journey, and the duty was left to Mr. Nowak. No word of any kind was received from Rome, and suspicion was aroused that Mr. Nowak had not started.

A messenger was sent to his home, in Mount Pleasant, where Mr. Nowak was found. He claimed that money was owing to him in a transaction effected between him and Father Klawitter. The priest then decided to prosecute him.

A meeting of the parishioners was held, and it was decided to send another delegate to Rome.

The Detective Shot.

BUFFALO, Feb. 23.—Detective John Taylor was shot while assisting Charles Aaron, of New York, in serving warrants on W. G. Woodcock and L. E. Elleson, ex-agents of his, who he claims owe him $200. Aaron had demanded a settlement and they had refused and threatened to shoot him if he came back. Aaron got a warrant and a pistol and sought the men. In the excitement the revolver went off, the ball entering the detective's leg, inflicting a severe wound.

Their Crookedness Discovered.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ills., Feb. 22.—Experts reported yesterday the results of their investigation of the books of the officers of this county to the board of supervisors, and the report shows that ex-Sheriff Ed Ryan is short $2,658, ex-County Clerk L. G. Putnam $1,081, and ex-Treasurer J. W. McLean $57,500. The investigation covered a period of eight years.

The Strikers Won.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—The men who have been on strike on the building being erected by Morton & Chesley, the Boston contractors, for nearly two weeks, have returned to work, an agreement having been reached. The settlement of the strike is a most decided victory for the men. The difficulty was caused by the refusal of the contractors to pay union wages and their absolute refusal to recognize the Carpenters' union.

THE EXTRADITION TREATY.

It Can Be Made Retroactive—Bad Outlook for the Boodlers.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 22.—The concensus of opinion about the lobbies of parliament here is that the new extradition treaty as ratified by the United States senate is all that could be desired. The omission of political offenses as extraditable has, however, caused some comment, and is regarded as a back down on the part of the British government.

Weldon, whose extradition bill passed the Dominion parliament last session, says that he is at a loss to understand why the crime of obtaining money under false pretenses was stricken out, as he regards it as one of the most important.

He was informed by Sir John Thompson that the British government had reported that it was not their intention of disallowing his bill. He further states that it can be made retroactive, and under its provisions, after proclamation, scores of United States boodlers, who are now finding refuge in Canada, could be handed over, where there cases would not be reached by the new extradition treaty.

His bill provides for the extradition of criminals for obtaining money under false pretenses. With the Weldon bill and the new treaty in force Canada should soon be rid of fugitive criminals from foreign countries who have sought an asylum on her shores.

In the Assembly.

ALBANY, Feb. 22.—In the assembly Mr. Cornell offered a resolution reciting that the naval magazine on Ellis Island, in New York harbor, is very close to New York and Jersey City; that the storage of explosives will be increased as the navy grows; that such storage of explosives is dangerous to life and property in New York and Jersey City and to shipping in the port; that a petition is now before congress to authorize the secretary of the navy to take immediate steps to remove the magazine; and that a joint resolution providing for such removal has been introduced in the United States senate, and therefore, the senate concurring, the legislature earnestly asks congress to adopt the resolution at its present session. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

Among the bills passed was Mr. Christie's, incorporating Gloversville as a city.

Among the bills introduced were Mr. J. I. WASHINGTON NEWS.

The Report of the Committee on Totally Disabled Pensioners Adopted.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The conference report on the bill to increase the pensions of totally disabled pensioners was presented to the senate and agreed to, after being explained by Mr. Davis.

The bill as agreed upon in conference, and which has now been agreed to in both houses, is the senate bill as originally passed, and corrects an omission in the act of 1880, which provided that the increase from $50 to $72 should not apply to those pensioned after the passage of the act.

Indians Starving.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 22.—Word comes from the Peace river and Slave lake districts that the Indians there are starving. This winter several small bands were kept alive by what the traders could give them. A big council of Indians was held, and it was decided that their only hope for future existence was in making a treaty with the government. Fish and game are scarce, and fur animals are almost exterminated in some regions.

THE ROOF CRASHED IN

The Grand Opera House in Philadelphia Wrecked.

BARELY ESCAPED DEATH.

The Fifty Men Employed in Repairing the Building Saw the Roof Lurch and Fled for Their Lives—Eight Caught in the Falling Mass.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.—At 8:55 Friday morning the fifty men at work under the roof of the Grand opera house in this city saw the roof begin to lurch and crack above them.

There was an immediate rush for safety, and not a bit too soon, for almost at once the 125 ton mass came crashing down.

The men fled for their lives, and barely escaped death. Eight men failed to escape and were caught in the debris.

They were rescued very soon after, and six of them, painfully injured, were sent to the hospital, while the other two, with less hurts, went home.

The roof was being raised in order to improve the acoustic qualities of the auditorium.

A Tremendous Crash.

There was a tremendous crash when the roof fell, and exciting scenes ensued, people rushing towards the building from all directions.

First reports had it that eighty men were buried in the ruins and that there had been terrible loss of life, this story adding to the excitement which spread rapidly through the city.

The elevation of the roof was considered quite an engineering feat.

It rested on iron columns and was attached to ropes running through pulleys supported by ten derricks.

Raised Four Feet.

The ropes were drawn taut through windlasses, each manned by eight men, and at a signal they all began hoisting.

The roof was to be lifted eight feet, and it had gone up four feet when the crash came.

The wrecked theatre was the largest in the city. It stood at North Broad street and Montgomery avenue, occupying about a third of the block.

The building is owned by John F. Betz, the millionaire brewer, whose loss by the accident will be very heavy.

Will Join the Atlantic League.

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 22.—A meeting was held here to effect a temporary organization of a baseball association to enter the Atlantic league. President Jackson, of the league, and President Barnie, of the Baltimore club, were present. Officers were elected, with J. Edward Allen as president. Thirty-five hundred dollars of the $5,000 necessary was raised for stock. The board of directors was authorized to employ a temporary manager to secure players. President Barnie, of the Baltimore club, said that Washington would be in the Atlantic association. The inference was that Indianapolis and Washington would be dropped by the National league, and that the Atlantic league would drop the Wilmington club.

ODD WEDDIND CUSTUMES.

HOW MATRIMONIAL CEREMONIES WERE CONDUCTED IN YE GOODE OLD TYMES.

When men stole their wives without the formality of considering in the least the feelings, wishes, or preference of the ladies concerned, there was no thought of presenting the bride with anything save the necessary utensils for housekeeping, and the promise of condign punishment in case they were not properly and efficiently used. When, however, marriage became a contract and was recognized as such, the consent of the bride was an important preliminary, and was generally secured by gifts, sometimes of nominal, often of real value.

As civilization changed the conditions of life the married state became much more expensive; the wife became a drag on the resources of her husband; and then the men began to demand that, instead of paying for their wives, they should receive some compensation for being willing to marry. This originated the bride's dowry, on the principle that, as marriage is a contract and the expenses of a bachelor, the bride should contribute to the resources of the household.

In every Welsh neighborhood, until almost the middle of the present century, there was a functionary known as the bidder. The duty of this important official was to give notice of an approaching marriage, which he did by perambulating the neighborhood and surrounding country, announcing the festivities, inviting everybody to attend, and stating in pleasant Welsh doggeral rhymes the important people who would be present, the merits of the groom, the beauty and graces of the bride, and the abundance and delicacies of the viands that would be placed before the guests. He also served notice on all persons indebted in wedding gifts to the groom and bride or to their parents to pay up at once, the meaning of which peculiar dun will be apparent in the light of the fact that on previous occasions the parents of the pair have contributed to the household effects of half the neighborhood, and naturally desires a return.

On the day of the wedding the presents are laid out in rows on tables, and an auctioneer, paid for the purpose, attends and values at a cash rate every thing that has been presented. Receipts in due form are given, and in case the gift is not the payment of a debt similarly incurred, a return of similar value is expected when a marriage takes place in the family of the donor. By this plan the drain on resources of families for wedding presents is, in some measure, made good by a return, for among the Welsh the same kind of article is, if possible, returned when payment is requested, so that he who gives a pickle dish receives a pickle dish, and to prevent a multiplicity of pickle dishes a consultation of neighbors is generally held, at which the gifts to be made are determined. Among the wedding presents, however, there is often one which, from its peculiarity, is observable. It is a gift from the groom to the bride, and is in the form of a small box, to contain such little trinkets as she may have. Once it was an invariable accompaniment of a wedding, but, like the bidding and the bidder, it is now falling into disuse, and is more rarely seen than even in the middle of the present century. But three or four hundred years ago the wedding casket was as important an accessory to the ceremony as the ring.

During the middle ages there were among the kings and noblemen of Europe two kinds of marriages—the one in which the wife shared the honor of her husband, and her children inherited his rank and fortune, if he had any, the other in which he gave his left hand during the ceremony; his wife was merely his legalized companion, her children could not inherit his property, and she herself did not take his name nor share his rank. The latter marriage was confirmed the morning after its celebration by a gift—the morgengabe—generally of deeds to property, the documents being enclosed in a small but valuable box. In passing, it may be noted that many complications grew out of these two styles of matrimony, for certain noblemen conceived the idea that besides a regular, right hand wife, they were entitled also to a morganatic or left hand spouse, if they wanted one. Philip Landgrave of Hesse, one of the supporters of the reformation, was of this opinion, but, being a man of prudence, determined to take ecclesiastical counsel on the subject, and accordingly wrote to Luther and Melancthon, requesting an approval of his course. The question was exceedingly delicate, for the Landgrave was not a man to be trifled with, and threatened to appeal to the Emperor, or even to the Pope, in case of the refusal of the reformers to sanction his action in the proposed second marriage. In answer, they, therefore drew up a most remarkable document, disapproving of such marriages in general, but confirming the act of Phillip, who, thus fortified by clerical authority, married, morganatically, Marguerittte de Staal, and gave her what was said to be the most beautiful wedding casket ever seen in Germany.

In these days the wedding casket was for the bridegroom a solemn reality, for he was expected not only to provide the casket, but also to fill it with the finest jewels his means could procure. When his species of gifts was found to be too much of a tax, the jewels were omitted from the programme, but the box was retained and presented, usually with a single piece of money inside, as symbolic of "all the wordly goods" with which the groom, even to the present day, is supposed to endow his bride. The museums of Europe contain many of these wedding caskets, there being no variety in their material, form, and manufacture. In the fourteenth century there was an idea prevalent in most parts of Europe that a wedding the nature of the groom's occupation should be symbolized in some way by the sourroundings. Thus, the carpenter, in walking into church with his new-found treasure, promenaded over shavings and chips which were strewn on the pavement. The shoemaker had a friend proceed the jovial party, carrying a pair of shoes on a pole; the tanner had an untanned hide borne in the van of the little procession; the ropemaker a coil of his own rope; the blacksmith was proceded by his anvil, on which members of the company from the time to time enthusiastically performed.

TO ADVERTISERS!

HOW TO GET THE MOST SERVICE FOR THE MONEY!

The Advertiser who would be willing to pay twenty-five cents for every family who could be "educated" up to the value of his goods would thus devote $3,000,000 to educate the 12,000,000 families which make up the 60,000,000 of the United States. This sum would do the business thoroughly in a year, for it is sufficient to pay for the insertion of a full column in every issue of every publication, and for resetting the matter, making it new in every issue of each separate publication. We will receive and execute the contract.

$5,000 One of the most successful Advertisers we ever had always ordered his advertisements in this way, "Get the best service you can for me for $5,000," leaving every detail to us. We were thus enabled to say to a Publisher, if you put this in at a large reduction from your rate it will be no criterion for further transactions. It was a surprise to find ourselves so often able to contract for the insertion of that particular advertisement at half rates, in papers which would not permit us to OFFER their columns at a penny's deviation from a printed schedule. The advertising rates of one New York paper are double those of another which has twice the circulation of the first. Similar discrepancies are not uncommon. The advertisement intrusted to us to be placed in accordance with our judgment often does double service for half the money. A dollar for twenty-five cents.

$1,000 If we are given authority to insert advertisements to a limited amount, in such mediums as ofier inducements which seem to us specially favorable, we shall not abuse the confidence reposed in us, and shall render statements of whatever is done (if anything) from day to day. When TRUSTED with the placing of an advertisement, we are put upon honor, and are bound in honor to give the best service possible for the money to be used.

$500 Leading Newspapers, especially the leading Agricultural Nswspapers, frequently issue large special editions (of twenty, fifty, a hundred, or even five hundred thousand copies,) and eslicit advertisement orders from us on terms which would often be accepted by our patrons if there was time to invite attention to the matter; but the question must generally be decided before there would be time to write and receive a reply, and often the caso cannot be fully stated within the limits of a letter.

$250 Prepare a small advertisement and send with check for $250, or any other sum. The practice of asking the Agent to name his papers in advance compels him to name such as are well known, otherwise there is reason to suspect that his judgment is biased;—and the best papers do not like to have their rates quoted below their schedule.

$100 The advertiser who sends his advertisements asking for the best service possible for one hundred dollars, will often get from five to fifty per cent more service for his money, than he would had he required us to tell him in advance exactly what service we would promise; for when an estimate has been given its plan and specifications must, in a general way at least, control the advertising to be done: It ties the Agent's hands and prevents his giving his patrons TO-DAY a better service than he could have promised yesterday, because yesterday the opportunity had not presented itself: to-morrow it may have passed! Some publications are used more economically on contracts for a single issue; in others insertion for a month may be had as cheaply as for a single week but in furnishing an estimate in advance, if the Agent attempts to go into details, his correspondence becomes voluminous and the advertiser confused.

$50. If you are in the habit of occasionally inserting a small advertisement in a few papers, investing a few dollars and carefully noting the result; we desire you to make trial of our Advertising Bureau, sending us the advertisement and the money, leaving the selection of the papers to us, and judging of the service rendered by results rather than by names, circulation claims or prices. To make up careful estimates calls for much work. It don't pay to make them indiscriminately for every applicant. If such estimates as are asked for were always given the Advertiser who wished to expend $50 would frequently find himself in posession of a scheme which it would cost $500 or possibly $5,000 to carry out.

$10. We devote all necessary care to placing small orders for Advertising:—even the smallest! Time is saved by sending check with the order. Often the Advertiser is not possessed of sufficient information on the subject to enable him to judge of the merits of an estimate for advertising, and he decides by the footings of the figures whether he will or will not do the work. Yet the estimate binds the Agent and makes it improper for him to make any variation in its specifications, however much his judgment may point to material changes which ought to be made. This is specially liable to be the case when the order comes a considerable time after the estimate was made.

THE FAIR FOR CHICAGO

She Gets a Majority of the Votes on the Eighth Ballot.

CHAUNCEY DEPEW IS SAD.

How Chicago Feels Over Winning the First Round in the Big Fight—St. Louis Sore on the "Bad Management" of Her Cause.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—On the eighth ballot, amid intense excitement, with the representatives of the Windy City rushing around like madmen, congress voted on Monday night to locate the World's fair in Chicago. It was a fair field and no favors, and Chicago won the prize. The figures of the eight ballots tell their own story:

Ballots.	Chic.	N. Y.	St. L.	Wash.	Total.
First	115	72	61	56	304
Second	121	83	59	46	309
Third	127	92	53	34	306
Fourth	127	92	48	29	306
Fifth	139	108	36	23	306
Sixth	149	116	28	19	312
Seventh	155	112	27	17	311
Eighth	157	107	25	18	307

Chicago forged steadily ahead from the start to the finish. New York made some fine spurts, and on the fifth ballot, when she gained 16 votes, her prospects seemed to justify a mild flicker of hope. The Washington vote had dropped from 56 to 23, and the loss had mainly gone to New York. With the rest of the Washington ballot and a little help from St. Louis the contest would have become a dangerous one for Chicago. But instead of the 25 or 30 votes which New York needed to make her chances respectable, she only got 8. This brought her to her high water mark—116.

From that point she steadily went the downward path, while Chicago steadily climbed upward. At the eighth and last ballot Chicago was at the winning post and New York was just 30 votes behind her. At this time St. Louis had 25 votes and Washington 18. Even their combined forces could not have saved New York. The fight was Chicago's from the moment of New York's drop on the seventh ballot.

How Chicago Takes It.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—The Inter Ocean, commenting on the selection of Chicago as the site for the World's fair, says:

This end of strife is only the beginning of work. To get ready for a World's fair worthy the occasion, the country, and the city will be a vast and arduous labor. We have full confidence in the ability of Chicago to bear worthily the burden thus put upon it. From the first our people have taken a thoroughly practical view of the matter and not trusted to noise and bluster. Enthusiasm is a good thing in its way, but, like the fine words of the proverb, it "butters no parsnips."

Chicago must show to the world that America has made no mistake in intrusting the expositional celebration of the four hundredth anniversary of its discovery to the imperial city of the interior.

The Only City.

The Tribune says: It does not need much search to find out why Chicago won. The principal reason was that no other city had the same qualifications. The moment it was decided that the fair should be American, not foreign; national, not provincial; depending for its success on the citizens of the New World and not the Old, the selection of any other place than this became a practical impossibility. The popular verdict was for Chicago, and the house would not venture to set it aside.

An Honest Fight.

The Times says: In giving the World's fair to Chicago congress has done wisely and well. It has put in formal shape the verdict of the American people upon this question. It has voiced the unmistakable decision of the republic. After all, however, it it not congress that has made Chicago the site for the Columbian celebration, but the immutable logic and propriety of facts.

Sectional disappointment will not last a day. New York, St. Louis and Washington will be as loyal and as earnest for the American fair here as Chicago would have been for it anywhere else. If this city has crossed swords with worthy rivals in the struggle, certainly the fight has been an honest one, that can leave behind it neither rancor nor thought of revenge.

A Matter of Course.

The Herald says: Chicago has secured the World's fair of 1892. Yesterday's triumph was expected and deserved. It came in the natural order. It is a new and gallant achievement for a city which is beginning to take all sorts of success very much as a matter of course. Henceforth let no mean spirited citizen of this republic question manifest destiny or rail at accomplished facts. Chicago's supremacy will presently be acknowledged even by its most inveterate foes.

Depew Disappointed.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Chauncey M. Depew was asked how he felt about the loss of the World's fair to New York, and he said:

"I am deeply disappointed at the defeat of New York, which is clearly due to the opposition of the Republican congressmen. We did the best we could to get their votes, but they had been 'seen' by somebody else beforehand.

"It was natural that Chicago should receive the votes of the west. We expected that, but New York should have been supported by the eastern states. We had a majority of the southern votes, and if our neighbors had helped us New York would surely have won. It will hurt these people who have defeated New York.

"Chicago has now a white elephant on her hands with a prodigious appetite; and if she fails to rise to the occasion it would have been several dollars in her pocket if she had never been founded. She has assumed a frightful responsibility, and the eyes of the world are upon her as they never were before."

No Surprise.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 26.—Referring to the selection of Chicago for the World's fair, The Globe-Democrat says: The result will not be a surprise to those who have watched the tactics of Chicago's representatives at Washington and elsewhere during the last month—mostly at Albany, where they worked most earnestly to promote dissension among the advocates of New York's selection.

It would be an ungracious task to undertake, right in the shade of our defeat, to discuss the personal causes which led to that defeat. For the present the general term, "bad management," will suffice, and under this may be included the allegation of too much wind and too little work.

St. Louis has lost a cause which she ought to have won. She had in her favor all the elements which should have achieved victory for her, natural and geographical. She never ought to have had a rival except New York, which had the claim of the sea coast as a bid for foreigners, and the advantage of great wealth with which to menace the claims of other aspirants.

THE BROKEN RESERVOIR.

The Latest Reports Place the Loss of Life at About Forty.

PHOENIX, A. T., Feb. 26.—Conflicting rumors reached here concerning the loss of life by the bursting of a storage reservoir on the Hassayampa river, thirty miles away. First reports said that a volume of water swept down the valley leaving thirty Chinese and whites dead in its track. A later report claimed that those who were acquainted with the place asserted that no such loss of life could have occurred, and the damage was comparatively small.

A more authentic report, confirming the first account and giving particulars of a second break have just been received. A courier has arrived from the lower dam on the Hassayampa river and reports that another tremendous mountain of water came down the Hassayampa about 2 o'clock Saturday morning, and that thirty-four men were lost at the lower dam, where they were at work. They were all whites except three Chinese.

He reports Wickenberg all right. The loss of life in the valley between Wickenberg and the dam may not be known for some days, but will be thirty or forty. The courier states that the upper dam had undoubtedly broken and carried the two dams below down with it.

The fact that sixty miles of badly washed roads and swollen streams have to be traversed and crossed by couriers probably explains the meagerness of the particulars received. Another courier has been started from here. Anxiety has been increased by the fact that the stage due on the Walnut Grove route on Sunday night has not yet arrived here.

The dams were owned by the Walnut Grove Water Storage company, a New York firm, its stock being chiefly in the hands of Henry S. Van Buren, the Bates Brothers, and Messrs. Dillingham and Newbery.

The engineering work on the dams was begun by W. P. Blake, of New Haven, and completed by contract by Nagle & Leonard, of San Francisco. Engineer Blake's original plan for the Walnut Grove dam was to build a structure only 80 feet high, but after the work had been begun the company decided to make it 110 feet, and the designs were changed accordingly.

MURDER WILL OUT.

Two Ruffians Confess to a Crime Done Five Years Ago.

ROCHESTER, Feb. 26.—That "murder will out" was never better exemplified than in the confession just extorted from two men arrested in Livingston county for a minor offense that they were guilty of the murder of Emory Thayer at Hamilton Center, Livingston county, on Oct. 27, 1885.

This crime was one of shocking brutality, and this, together with the mystery involved in the affair, made it famous.

Thayer, who was a respectable farmer, had sold $300 worth of wheat and had the money in the house.

Mrs. Thayer was awakened by a noise about midnight, and going to her door she saw a man enter the parlor and light the lamps.

Thinking it was the hired man, she called him by name and asked him what he was doing down stairs.

As she spoke a masked man rushed upon her, grasped her by the throat, and plazing the muzzle of a pistol against her temple, hissed: "Don't you move or I will kill you both."

The noise made by the masked man awoke Mr. Thayer and he attempted to get out of bed, but was warned by the man to stay where he was.

In some way Mrs. Thayer shook off the murderer's grasp on her throat and then grappled with him.

When Mr. Thayer saw that the ruffian was struggling with his wife he sprang out of bed and rushed to his wife's assistance.

He shoved the man back against the door, and the latter, seeing that he was likely to be overmatched, fired his pistol, bringing Mr. Thayer to the floor, and then stamped his victim's brains out as he lay there.

The hired man, John Kuhn, was tried, and nothing but an extremely brilliant defense saved him from swinging for the death of Thayer.

Now Sheriff Tripp has Samuel D. Weighman and Nelson Swartz, two notorious characters of the county, under lock and key, and they have made a full confession of the crime before a justice of the peace.

THE DEAD MILLIONAIRE.

John Jacob Astor's Remains Consigned to the Grave.

The funeral of John Jacob Astor took place from Trinity chapel, on West Twenty-fifth street. Sexton Albert Meurer, followed by a surpliced male choir of forty voices, singing "Hark, Hark, my Soul," led the procession from the church door to the altar, followed by the Rev. Dr. C. E. Swope, the Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix and Bishop Potter. Then came Dr. Morris J. Asch, Dr. Francis Delafield, Dr. Charles T. Poore, Dr. Francis Markoe and Dr. Fordyce Barker, the five physicians who attended Mr. Astor in his last illness. The pall bearers were: George L. Schuyler, A. Gracie King, E. H. Wright, Sidney Webster, John Jay, Richard King, C. F. Southmayd, J. L. Cadwalader.

The coffin was covered with royal purple velvet, with silver plate and silver handles. The members of the Astor family followed the coffin. The music, under the direction of the organist, Dr. W. B. Gilbert, was as follows: Processional hymn, "Hark, Hark, My Soul," Roe. Psalm, "Lord, Let Me Know Mine End," Pelton. Hymn after lesson, "Nearer My God to Thee," Mason. Anthem, "I Heard a Voice from Heaven," Gilbert. Recessional hymn, "Jerusalem, the Golden," Ewing.

In the carriages that followed the hearse to the church were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Astor, J. J. Astor and Miss Zela Gibbes, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Drayton, Mrs. and Mrs. Orme Wilson, Mme. de Stuers and Mr. Carey, the Messrs. Armstrong the Messrs. Paul and the family servants.

GRAVE ROBBERS SHOT.

A Sensational Tragedy Enacted in a Cemetery.

AMID THUNDER AND RAIN.

A Party of Physicians and Their Assistants Surprised in the Act of Desecrating Graves—One of the Assistants Instantly Killed.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 26.—About 1 o'clock in the morning, when the rain was falling in torrents, the thunder reverberating over the sleeping town and everything as black as the condor's wing at midnight, a sensational tragedy was enacted in the graveyard at New Albany, across the river from Louisville.

A party of grave robbers, composed of leading Gainsville physicians and their assistants, were surprised in the act of desecrating graves, and one of them instantly killed.

Prominent Physicians.

The party consisted of three prominent Louisville physicians—Dr. J. T. Blackburn and Dr. W. E. Grant, and another whose name is unknown—and three colored assistants. They had gone over to rob the graves of the corpses of Thomas Johnson and Edward Pearce, which were buried last Sunday, and had deliberately planned the affair; but a little carelessness spoiled everything, and led to the death of one of the negro helpers, whose name is unknown.

For some time medical colleges here have been unable to procure sufficient material for dissection, consequently the raid on New Albany cemetery was conceived.

A Trap Laid.

It would probably have been entirely successful if one of the ghouls had not made a reconnoiter in the daytime.

This aroused suspicion and a trap was laid for their capture.

A guard was stationed in the cemetery, and just as the ghouls had stuck a spade into the first grave officers sprang upon them.

They started to run, when a volley terminated the career of one and brought the others, save one, to a standstill.

The man who was killed was a negro assistant of the party.

The Party Arrested.

Three other men were arrested.

They were Dr. J. T. Blackburn and W. E. Grant, leading physicians of this city, and a negro.

The affair has caused a great sensation on both sides of the river.

The penalty for grave robbery in Indiana is severe, and there is a fair prospect that the two doctors, together with the one who has escaped for the present, will serve a term in the penitentiary.

ALBANY NEWS.

Referred to the judiciary committee.

Among the bills introduced was one by Mr. Van Gorder, fixing the salary of the surrogate of Niagara county at $2,500 per annum.

In the Assembly.

ALBANY, Feb. 26.—In the assembly the following were among the bills introduced:

By Mr. Mase—Repealing the act authorizing the election of a police justice at Fishkill Landing and the building of a jail.

Mr. Andrews' bill appropriating $130,000 for the erection of a reformatory institution for women either in the Seventh or Eighth judicial districts, was passed by a vote of 71 to 16.

The speaker presented a remonstrance from the state board of the American Federation of Labor against the employment of prisoners in Sing Sing as printers. On motion of Mr. Nolan the labor committee was authorized to investigate the matter and to send for persons and papers. Adjourned.

BRIEF MENTION.

Secretary Proctor has directed a court martial to try Lieut. Steele, of the Eighth cavalry, on the charge of striking Private Dell Wild, whose release is ordered in order that he may give his testimony. The investigation may go into the matter of Gen. Ruger and Col. Townsend allowing irregularities and the proceedings against Wild to pass unnoticed.

The first day of the state's rebuttal in the Leconey trial at Camden, N. J., brought out many interesting incidents, among which was a declaration from Judge Garrison that he had heard of an attempted intimidation of witnesses, and that if investigations proved it to be true, punishment would be prompt and severe.

The senate committee investigating the Hudson county, N. J., election frauds have taken the Fourth assembly district, and illegal ballots called "jokers" are still turning up. The recount in the first three districts reduces McDonald's majority by 1,581, of which 1,103 are "jokers."

There is trouble in Allegheny City, Pa., as to who shall control the Carnegie free library; meanwhile, no books have been placed in the building and the question is raised as to who is to purchase them.

The Duke of Orleans was removed to the prison at Clairvaux, where the principal occupation of the inmates is spinning flax.

Murderer Bartholomew, whom the death watch is guarding in the Easton, Pa., jail, says he will commit suicide.

The postoffice authorities at Scranton, Pa., are investigating the disappearance of registered letters and packages.

John Calvin, of Washington, signed to catch for the St. Louis Browns.

CHARLES BROWN ON TRIAL IN LOCK HAVEN

FOR

The Murder of William Lovett.

A Jury Drawn—The Case Opened and the Evidence Being Heard—Large Crowds in Attendance.

The case of Commonwealth vs. Charles Brown, for the murder of William Lovett a few weeks ago, in Lockport, was called in the Clinton county courts on Monday afternoon and on Tuesday morning they got down to business and went at it in earnest. A jury was selected without very much difficulty, and is composed of the following gentlemen :

NAMES OF THE JURORS.

W. H. Dornblazer, farmer, Porter township; Thomas B. Reed, merchant, First ward, Lock Haven; H. J. Allen, shoemaker. Crawford township; James P. Beckley machinist, South Renovo; Chas. R. Noyes, lumberman, Noyes township; Louis Walters, moulder, Third ward, Lock Haven; John Candor, constable, Third ward, Lock Haven; Joseph A. McKibben. farmer, Porter township; Henry Poorman, gentleman, Fourth ward, Lock Haven; John Bower, gentleman, Third ward, Lock Haven; J. T. Simpson, machinist, Middle ward Renovo; William Q. Clark laborer, Beech Creek boro.

BRUNGARD OPENS.

District Attorney Brungard opened the case by telling the jury what the prosecution proposed to show to prove positive malice in the heart of the prisoner against the deceased man Lovett, and he traced step by step the testimony as the commonwealth was prepared to give it, proving each occurence that took place on the fatal night of Dec. 14, when William Lovett was murdered, and said he would show it so clearly that there would be no doubt in the minds of the jury as to what the verdict should be.

FIRST WITNESS.

Mrs. William Lovett, widow of the murdered man, was the first witness called. Witness stated that they had two living children, two boys aged 4 and 2 years, and testified that she last saw her husband alive on Saturday noon. Saw him in Lock Haven afterwards, dead. Saw him buried.

Louis Hoover : Witness testified to time and place that Lovett was killed, and that he heard some noise as if some persons were quarreling. Heard some one say, "Leave me alone," twice. After he was called he looked at the clock and it was twenty-five minutes after 12 o'clock. On inquiring what was wanted he received no answer. So he returned to bed. He was called up again just before daylight, when he got up and found several men under the shingle shed with a fire and a man lying beside the fire. Parties wanted me to examine this man, who was William Lovett, to see if he was dead. Witness described the wounds and blood marks on pavements and fence. He said he found what he supposed to be a billy, indentified and shown him as looking like the same.

Cross-examined: Told direction from which he heard noise. Thought William Lovett had no coat on when he first saw him. Jack Lovett, Conway, Sweezy and Lindsay were at the shed. Thought Conway was drunk and Jack Lovett somewhat so. Lindsay was sober and could not remember how Sweezy was.

Redirect: Stated that Jack Lovett had his team in witness's stable and recognized photographs of shingle shed and wagon.

E. H. Welsh: Witness is a civil engineer and had prepared a draft from measurements made at the scene of the murder.

Draft was shown jury and points and distances explained by witness.

W. J. Leahy, Esq.: Am Sheriff of Clinton county; heard of murder of William Lovett between 7 and 7.30 o'clock on Sunday morning, Dec. 15. Was called up and went over and saw Lovett and then came back and went to depot to watch train. Then called on Chief Chatham and sent across bridge and went after Constable Myers. He and I crossed river in a boat and went to Charles Brown's house and arrested him as he tried to run out the back door. Then went to Wm. Brown's house and arrested him. When we got to Hoover's I got wagon brake and took it to the jail and locked up prisoners. Then Chief Chatham and I went back to the scene of the murder and took measurements from tracks to end of wagon. There was a little snow on the ground, saw blood on fence, on walk and on snow. Wagon brake identified by marks made by himself. Rope also indentified.

Cross examined; Witness retold of bringing prisoner and club to the jail and returning to the scene of the murder.

The prisoner looks a little paler than usual and is more or less nervous. It is likely the confinement that is telling on him.

Large crowds are in daily attendance and unlike what was at first supposed, considerable interest is manifested in the trial.

Restored Her Health.

For twenty-five years I suffered from boils, erysipelas and other blood affections, taking during that time great quantities of different medicines without giving me any preceptible relief. Friends induced me to try S. S. S. It improved me from the start, and after taking several bottles, restored my health as far as I could hope for at my age, which is now seventy-five years. MRS. S M LUCAL, Bowlinggreen, Ky.

Cured After Twenty-five Years of Suffering.

"I have used Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) for blood diseases and in every instance with the best results. About twenty-five years ago I had my leg hurt in an accident, and the wound never entirely healed. I tried various remedies without success. I was finally induced to try S. S. S. That medicine healed it up—healed it after twenty-five years of suffering had been endured and much money had been thrown away in the purchase of worthless medicines."

Rheumatism in Children.

One of my children was afflicted for a long time with rheumatism. After a number of remedies had failed I commenced giving her Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) After taking a couple of bottles she was entirely cured. W P. THOMPSON, Piedmont, S. C.

—A crowd of Hungarians, a brace of merchants, a wild young scamp and his companions, a drop of Sullivan's profession, a constable, 'squire and a bail bond and lastly a big, black bottle filled with "bug juice" succeeded in creating a sensational commotion in Tyrone a few evenings since. Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "good name at home,"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly.

—A rumor is afloat that Fietta Weaver's little three-year-old child said in the presence of several witnesses that her mamma [Fietta] stabbed Andrew Weaver. Of course there are a great many rumors afloat and it is hard to tell what is and what is not true.

It is a solid handsome cake of scouring soap which has no equal for all cleaning purposes except in the laundry. To use it is to value it...

What will SAPOLIO do? Why it will clean paint, make oil-cloths bright, and give the floors, tables and shelves a new appearance. It will take the grease off the dishes and off the pots and pans. You can scour the knives and forks with it, and make the tin things shine brightly. The wash-basin, the bath-tub, even the greasy kitchen sink will be as clean as a new pin if you use SAPOLIO. Body of a Dead Infant Found.

Special to the Tribune.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Feb. 24.—For the third time in twice that many months the remains of a dead infant were found in the borough cemetery here to day. A party of little boys who were playing in the cemetery unearthed a cigar box which was hidden under the leaves near one of the prominent cemetery drives. The box had been buried about a foot beneath the surface originally, but dogs or other animals had dug it up and exposed its contents. Coroner Harmon was notified, but owing to the condition of the remains it was not deemed advisable to hold an inquest. The child was a female and had been buried about two weeks. There is no clue to the identity of the parties who secreted the body.

An Old Farmer's Luck.

From the New York Sun.

We were within about a mile of Findlay, Ohio, and the train had just begun to slacken speed, when we felt a jar and knew that the locomotive had struck some considerable object. In the seat next ahead was a farmer, and he threw up the sash, shoved out his head, and exclaimed,

"By gum! but I'm in luck!"

"Why, they have killed a horse!" shouted a man behind us as he looked out.

"Yes, and it's my hoss!" added the farmer.

"But you said you were in luck?"

'You bet I am! I've been riding up and down this line for five years on a pass they gave me for killing an old cow which wasn't worth five dollars. The pass expired yesterday, and now my old hoss, who ain't worth skinning, gits in the way and is knocked over. Luck! Why, gents, that means a free family pass for five years more, and there are fourteen of us in the family!"

THE enemies of the protective system are somewhat embarrassed by the fact that the balance of trade in 1888 between the United States and foreign countries was more than $116,000,000 as compared with less than $3,000,000 in 1888. To have such figures made public just when they are making desparate efforts to convince the American people that our tariff laws must cripple our export trade in disheartening. The facts are against them and they must either retire from the field or set about concocting some ingenious argument whereby the heavy increase in exports may be accounted for as having been produced by abnormal circumstances and in spite of protection. They will undoubtedly choose the last named horn of the dilemma, but all their ingenious pleas in behalf of free trade will fall on deaf ears. Americans know that their country has wondrously prospered under protection, and they mean to make no change.

WE venture to make Postmaster General Wanamaker a suggestion. It is that he have his eyes and ears out to ascertain from what quarter comes the instant opposition to his postal telegraph scheme—what strong influence it is that prompts it, and what the considerations. That there should be opposition is not at all strange, but it is at least noteworthy that the opposition should be so well organized, drilled it might be said, and of a character that indicates peculiar reasons. Let Mr. Wanamaker take a look beneath the surface, and note what he sees there.

Who He Was.

The papers have been recording the fact of the killing of a man along the Beech Creek railroad on Wednesday night of last week between Hawk Run and Philipsburg, who was so mangled up that he could not be recognized. But it has since been ascertained that he was a Scotch miner named John Nelson and the place where he was killed was Troys bridge. The man had been drinking and it is supposed that he either fell asleep on the track or was too drunk to step out of the way of the train. He has a wife and four children in Scotland and his father and a brother-in-law are living at West Moshannon. His remains were taken to Philipsburg and given decent burial.—L. H. Democrat.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

Spring Materials. Costumes. Millinery.

Light wool materials were never before so varied or so beautiful and an imitation of all nature's resources in flowers and foliage, seem to be called into requisition to adorn the feminine garb of the opening season. Plaids in many styles, are extremely popular, and often very remarkable from their size and brilliancy of coloring. Genuine Tartan Plaids are revived and will be toned down in combination with cream, mauve and other delicate colors and small checks. Bourette effects are again seen, and tuftings and fleckings appear on corded stripes and checks. Lace patterns of contrasting colors, are woven in the material and also on the surface, and are from four inches to a foot in depth. These designs are generally floral and the effects produced by rich harmonious combinations of color are charming. Silken embroideries on cashmere are lovely—flowers of all kinds with attendant foliage appear in their natural colors, and form a rich and beautiful border; often terminated by a silken fringe, giving an elegant finish.

TAILOR MADE

suits will be worn. and French broadcloths in solid colors, are well adapted to that purpose. Embroidered vests, fancy jacket fronts and turn-down collars, will modify the serene outlines of the true tailor made suit. Draperies are clinging, and waists are much ornamented, but after all a perfect fitting corset is obligatory, and fashionable modistes here, are very partial to the Thomson Glove fitting corset, because of its shapely outlines and adaptation to different figures, which ensures comfort to the wearer, since in all styles there are short, medium and long. Langdon, Batcheller & Co., the manufacturers of these celebrated goods, have introduced the past season a line of Glove fitting corsets made of Italian cloth fast black, trimmed with new colors, but wealthy ladies also elegant ones in crimson, blue yellow or gray. Equally well-shaped corsets are in jean or coupil at moderate prices.

MILLINERY MATERIALS

are bewitching and bewildering. Huge plaids, to be used on the bias, in velvet and silk of the gayest colors, are reproduced in ribbons several inches wide of the same bright hues; while on the other hand, exquisitely delicate wreaths of small flowers show that all tastes may be suited, Ribbons are in endless variety,and are plaided,striped, dotted, double faced, brocaded and in gauze. Black predominaks in hats, and the leading shape for young people, is a low-crowned hat of fine hair, or Milan straw, having a very narrow brim at the back and flaring front in fancy braid. Capotes hold their own, and one variety of fine white hair with inter-woven colorings, needs but a bow of ribbon, or one small spray of flowers as trimming. Turbans and English walking hats are in a small minority. Flowers are either very small or very large, and ready-made crowns of small flowers are shown. Charming scraps in Persian colors, will be twisted by deft fingers into coquettish little capotes and kept in place by fancy pins, crescents, etc. A tris of ostrich tips, held in place by a pompon, are arranged to stand straight up and the end suddenly falls over. These garnitures are in all the new colors and their modifications—one house showing fifty-six different shades. VERONA CLARKE.

Boston's Marriage Club.

Stevenson's Suicide Club, in which that member who drew the ace of spades had forthwith to be put out of the world by a fellow-member,produced its profoundest effect—as all new ideas do—in the city of Boston, where a similar club (so I am told) was promptly organized. But in the Boston club, instead of being murdered, the unhappy drawer of the fatal card was required to offer himself in marriage within six months after the drawing of the lots. No restriction was placed upon his choice of a lady, the only obligation being that, within the appointed time, he should, in good faith, ask some woman to marry him. The club, in the meanwhile, was to be informed of the object of his choice, and while one-half of its members were to seek the lady out, and insidiously disparage her desperate suitor, the other half were to leave no stone unturned in their efforts to persuade her of his shining virtues. Whether or no the club still exists, I have been unable to ascertain.

The Book Agent Met Her Match.

From the Boston Globe.

'I was settling down to work," said a book agent-pestered man yesterday, "when a pretty woman entered my office. No one would suspect that she was a book agent. She placed a volume in front of me and began to talk. I told her I would not buy the book if I really wanted it. 'Never mind,' said she, gayly. 'It won't cost you anything to look at it.'

'As she desired, I did look at it. I read the introduction and then chapter 1. It was about 10 o'clock when I opened the book. At 11 o'clock the pretty book agent had become uneasy. I never raised my eyes. Another hour and she was pacing up and down the floor, At 1 o'clock, when she had nearly worn herself out, I laid the book down and, putting on my hat and coat, said to the thoroughly exasperated woman: That's a clever book, I regret that I cannot read more of it, but I must away to dinner.'

'She was mad, but she didn't say a word. Grabbing the book, she shoved it into her satchel and made for the street.'

HE CHANGED HIS POLITICS.

"HORIZONTAL BILL MORRISON'S STORY OF THE LINCOLN AND DOUGLAS CAMPAIGN

At a joint meeting of bankers, lawyers and newspaper men last evening ex-Congressman W. D. Hill told the following story:

"Horizontal Bill" Morrison, who was strongly in favor of Douglas for President in 1860, in his stumping campaign of Illinois, advised the young girls to get their lovers to vote for the Little Giant, and he illustrated his point by telling them how an Illinois girl had marriad a young chap who was a great Lincoln man, and before the marriage she had been unable to proselyte him. They were married and went to Chicago on their wedding trtp. They had retired to their room, and the young husband went down to "take a somke." About 10.30 he retired to his room, but found the door locked.

"Who is there?" asked the young wife inside.

"Your husband, dear," was the reply.

"What's your politics?" she said.

"I am a Lincoln man, and don't you forget it."

"Well, no Lincoln can come in here."

The young man retired, went down stairs and took another smoke and lingered until about 12 o'clock. Going again to the room, he knocked.

"Who is there?" asked the wife.

In a very stern and definant tone he said: "Open that door; I'm your husband."

"I tell you,"said the wife from the inside, "that no Lincoln man can get in this room."

Provoked and mad, the young man went down stairs again. About 10 o'clock in the morning he ascended the stairs once more and knocked—this time very timidly.

"Who's there?" came in a different tone from the young wife.

The reply was given in in a lowered and muffled voice: Let me in; I am John, your husband, and a leetle the best Douglas man in the State of Illinoy.'

And the door opened as if by the touch of electricity.

Is Consumption Incurable?

UNMENTIONED INCIDENTS.

In Connection with the Execution of Thursday. How Hopkins was Dressed, Etc.

W. Seely Hopkins met his ignominious death on Thursday in the same suit in which he was married. He ascended the scaffold dressed like a bridegroom, His suit was of the conventional black with long Prince Albert coat. A buttonhole bouquet of pink and white flowers adorned the lappel of his coat. He wore a stiff derby hat, and looked neat and pleasing. If it had not been known it would have seemed almost incredible that such an appearing man could be guilty of an inhuman crime and was to so soon expiate it on the gallows.

THEY SAW THE ROPE BREAK.

The prisoners in the jail were curious enough to desire to see the execution and, calling their ingenuity into requisition, they conceived the idea that by extending the mirror out of the window and getting the reflection of the scaffold they would then be enabled to view the hanging through the mirror, This was accordingly done and the result was satisfactory to the prisoners. When the mishap, in the breaking of the rope, occurred, the exclamation went through the jail like an electric flash. The cry was taken up by every prisoner and for a few seconds "the rope has broken" rang supreme throughout the dismal cells of the stone mansion. The cry, of course, was and the result, in his case, was most pitiable. He cryed, and bemoaned the fate of his late friend, Seely. "Oh, God! have mercy on my poor friend Seely," was chief among his laments, and he prayed for the Sheriff to let him go! Ah young man; again take warning. Think of that poor wretch, cowering there in his cell, bemoaning the fate of his friend, a fate which he knows so soon will be his own, and never allow passion to get the better of your judgment so that you will commit a crime that will place you in the same position. Andrews has calmed down now, and this morning feels all right again, but we warrant that the remembrance of Thursday's work will follow to the day of his own doom.

IT IS NOT SO

How foolish to circulate a report that the tickets of admission to the hanging were distributed on a basis of political partisanship. It is no such a thing. The Sheriff distributed the tickets as fairly and evenly as it was possible. It must be remembered that when there were only two hundred tickets to distribute and there were several thousand applications for the same, that some persons would have to be refused.

MODJESKA AT A RECEPTION.

The Elegant Toilette and Charming Manner of the Actress Receiving Women.

From the Epoch.

Of course every woman and not a few men will want to know how Modjeska was dressed. Her costume was simple in the extreme and yet of that French simplicity which is a fine art and often costlier than more elaborate and ostentatious display. Her robe was of an exquisite dovecolor in soft cloth that fell in full Grecian folds at the back; the front was open over a soft silken vest of the same color and relieved by white tule at the throat; the pleaded skirt of silk, also a delicate gray, was brightened at the side by a rich bead passementerie of steel and gold.

Her bonnet—if that fascinating creation of lace and tulle beneath which her eyes gleamed like stars out of a dark sky—could be termed a bonnet, was black, relieved with a delicate thread of rose-pink around the brim; a single great diamond shone at her throat and sparkled with every quick movement of her bird-like head.

Her manner was gracious in the extreme; slightly French, with a suggestion of marquise like dignity, she yet made each one who shook hands with her feel immediately at ease, and to each remark (and how many of the same sort she must have heard during the two hours she stood there!) she had a ready and an apt reply, as she stood smiling up into her admirer's face, lightly holding her great bunch of Jacqueminot and Catherine Mermet roses mingled with feathery ferns.

DEATH IN OUR MIDST.

PARTICULARS OF THE SAD DEATH OF MISS JENNIE SHORTLIDGE ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

A brief notice in this paper yesterday announced the death of Miss Jennie Shortlidge, which occurred on Wednesday night. We now give the particulars which were about as follows:

About nine or ten days ago Miss Jennie took a cold—probably an attack of the prevailing grippe—and ever since has been closely confined to the house, never leaving her own room until on Wednesday evening. Friends came to see her, with all of whom she talked and chatted gaily, and no one apprehended the sad ending which was so soon to come.

On the evening named above Miss Jennie came down stairs and took tea with the rest of the family, but shortly afterwards again returned to her room. When the fire broke out on Logan street about half past seven o'clock the young lady went to the window and watched the flames, and naturally, became more or less excited. After the fire, she became very weak and had to be assisted to her bed. She became violently sick and vomited considerably and yet nothing serious was apprehended.

The family all retired but her father, Mr. Wm. Shortlidge, who sat by her bed side to help her to anything she might require during the night. It was but a few minutes past 12 o'clock when Mr Shortlidge noticed a paleness in her face, that seemed strange and unaccountable. He stooped to listen to her breathing and was horrified to find that life was almost extinct. The doctor was hastily summoned but on his arrival the vital spark had fled and Miss Jennie was a corpse. The cause of her death is rather indefinite, but was either heart disease or hemorrhage of the brain, but probably the latter was the true cause.

When the announcement of her death was made on Thursday morning it fell like a thunderbolt on the whole community. No one had any idea of the serious illness of the young lady and, as she was a favorite with all her friends and associates, the announcement could not fail to horrify, coming with such surprising suddenness.

Miss Jennie was just in the bloom of her youth; she was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Shortlidge, and was only 22 years, 4 months and 5 days old. She was of a genial, sunny disposition and these fine social qualities in addition to her many accomplishments gained for her hundreds of friends who to-day are mourning with her father, mother and sisters, her sudden taking off.

Miss Jennie about a year ago learned stenography and type writing and had become quite expert in her chosen profession. She has lately been employed in the offices of the Centre Iron Company and McCalmont & Co. She was a consistent member of the Presbyterian church. One of the saddest features in connection with this most sad event is the fact that her mother was not at home, having gone away a couple of weeks ago and had not yet returned.

The funeral will take place on Monday at 11 o'clock a. m. from the residence of her parents on Thomas street. Services will be held in the Presbyterian church.

"A FRIEND'S" TOUCHING TRIBUTE.

"There is no death: What seems so is transition,
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life elysian,
Whose portal we call Death,',

The painful and distressing sadness that ever follows upon the loss of a dearly beloved one from a loving family prevails to-day in the sadly stricken home of Col. William Shortlidge. Sudden death invaded his happy home during the silent midnight watches of Wednesday night and bore away the youngest, fairest member of the household.

God's finger touched her and she slept. Miss Jennie had been ill for several days with the prevailing malady and apparently was convalescing. But a relapse took its relentless hold upon her and quickly, alas, to quickly, accomplished its sad and fatal purpose. Watching, with a father's solicitude, by her bedside, at the hour of midnight, with her mother far from home, Mr. Shortlidge suddenly observed the light of life growing dimmer and ere the physician could be summoned for relief it was extinguished.

"Then, fell upon the house a sudden gloom;
A shadow on those features, fair and thin.
And softly, from that hushed and darkened room
Two angels issued where but one went in."

And so she passed away without a struggle; a loving, a dutiful daughter, a kind, affectionate sister and tender companion; the light and joy of the home and a universal favorite. She is gone and how greatly she will be missed by one and all. But she has only crossed to the other shore and is there standing now with a loving smile beckoning to the dear ones left behind to follow after.

Sorrow comes to one and all. And such is the affliction that presses heavily upon this bereaved family and wins the heart felt sympathy of many sorrowing friends both far and near, But afflictions after all are not sent in vain from our Heavenly Father who chastens whom he loves. The eyes of faith and resignation can pierce the densest darkness of grief that so often envelops us and see beyond it the light of God's love and mercy; and the soul is strengthened as it lays hold upon the promise "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter."

Tis truly hard to part with those we esteem so highly or love so well, but the memories they leave behind are ever sweet.

Miss Jennie was a spring of mirth and joy where'er she went.

A bright smile here, a laughing word there and kind deeds everywhere made her the winsome, popular young girl whose death has shocked and saddened the entire community, cheerful and loving in her home, bright and happy in society, faithful and active in the conscientious discharge of duty whether in the sacred work of the church or Sabbath school or in her daily occupasion. She has left an impress upon our hearts and memories that time can ne'er efface.

And while her sweet voice is hushed in the choir below she is singing joyfully to-day in the angelic choir above.

"Ah 'tis not well
That we should mourn with bitter tears her flight
Thus early from the earth, for she is now
A lovely blossom on the tree of life,
Blossoming forever in God's paradise."

A FRIEND.

Another Improvement.

Our attention is called to still another change and improvement in the management of the post office under our new postmaster. The important and principal mail to our town which, when on time, arrives at 9.25 in the morning, is at once assorted and distributed and the post office immediately opened, and not as formerly, kept closed for more than an hour for the distribution of the local mail from Lock Haven.

Through this accommodation, when this large mail is on time, all persons can obtain their mail before the departure of the morning mail going east and west at 10.25 a. m. We all owe you, Mr. Fiedler and your clerks, a thousand thanks.

And now just one thing more, Mr. postmaster; this community, ever since the removal of the postoffice to its location so near the railroad depot, have asked that the mails leaving be kept open for mail matter until five or ten minutes before the departure of each train. In the past mails have been closed one half hour before the departure of the trains, much to the inconvenience and annoyance of our business men, and taken to the depot and left outside—sometimes for one hour—while the carrier could discuss in the baggage room the advantages and benefits of Anarchy.

All persons ask this further accommodation of you, Mr. Fiedler.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company's Last Tour to Jacksonville.

Contrast carries strong and convincing argument, where eloquent and wordy dissertations fail. To wit: When the tourists alighted in Philadelphia and New York from the special train of Pullman vestibule cars, on which they had found a luxurious home en route from Jacksonville, their sun-bronzed, healthy faces, in contrast with those of their home-staying relatives and friends greeting them, contained such ample proof of the tour's benefit, that conventional health inquiries were entirely unnecessary. The last of these tours has been appointed for Tuesday, March 4th. Tickets, $50 from New York and $48 from Philadelphia, include meals en route in both directions, Pullman accommodation, sleeping, drawing room, and dining cars, and a privilege of a two weeks' stay in the South, amid the blossomings of tropical spring.

From the encouraging patronage of the previous tours, 'twould be well for those desiring to avail themselves of these popular personally conducted Pennsylvania Railroad enterprises, to apply at once to S W F Draper, Tourist Agent, 849 Broadway, or W W Lord, Jr., Tourist Agent, 205 Washington Street, Boston.

Nice to See.

Mr. Geo. H. Sheckler entertained an audience in Sankey's Hall last evening with his Stereopticon Exhibition and it will be repeated this evening. The entertainment is for the benefit of Mifflinburg Castle, No. 277 Knights of the Golden Eagle. Mr. Sheckler has an excellent outfit, and one of the finest and largest collections of Views extant, and, with fourteen years experience as an exhibitor, he is enabled to give satisfaction to any audience before whom he gives his exhibition. We trust that our people will fill the Hall to-night. They will receive full value for their money.—From Mifflinburg Telegraph of October 26, 1889.

This same entertainment will be given in Bellefonte this and tomorrow evenings. Go and see it. To be given for benefit of Gregg Post.

THE WEAVER AFFAIR.

THE SURPRISING IGNORANCE OF ALL PARTIES CONCERNED—A QUEER OPINION OF THE LAW OF MURDER.

From the Centre Reporter.

The tragic end of Andrew Weaver, undoubtedly from a stab by his daughter-in-law, suggests to us the idea of the commission of crime by some who from ignorance do not comprehend the responsiblity they incur from their acts.

All connected with the killing of Andrew Weaver, seem to be in the darkest ignorance, within sight of churches, school houses, and an intelligent community with which they had constant intercourse. Yet at this writing the Weaver folks do not seem to realize the fate that hangs over them and the consequences that may result to them.

When the mother, daughter and son were put on board the train at Coburn to be transported to prison, Fietta, in the hearing of the writer, remarked, that when they reached Bellefonte, she would hunt up a relative and make that her stopping place. The young woman evidently could not comprehend that she was no more at liberty and was now in the grasp of the law—her arrest seemed to mean nothing more in her mind, than a trip to Bellefonte, for some purpose, and that once there, she would have the opportunity of visiting and staying with relatives. Yet she was under arrest for the killing of her father-in-law. Fietta was not able to comprehend the real dreadful situation, it would seem.

Andrew Weaver, the husband of Fietta, is an industrious, hardworking denizen of the mountain district where the awful deed was committed. He is no wise connected with the quarrel on his and his unfortunate father's premises, and on the morning on which the old man was fatally stabbed he was away from home at work, and the very unfortunate affair has naturally brought deep sorrow to his breast.

Yet he, it appears, lacks the intelligence to comprehend the true situation, and seems not aware that his wife and his mother-in-law are in a serious predicament. Andrew was at Bellefonte a few days ago, to visit his wife and mother-in-law in prison. After his visit he related to an acquaintance, that he endeavored tn prevail upon Fietta, to make a confession of the deed, that when she did so all would be over, and she could return home with him, where she was needed so much and that he was tired of keeping house alone, and could not get along much longer if she did not get home.

Here again we see a lack of knowledge of the true situation of this undoubtedly honest and well-meaning man, whose wife has been taken from his home by the stern arm of the law, under the charge of murder. He seems to believe her confession will set her at liberty again, and the sooner it is made the better for both of them.

The idea of Fietta as to the meaning of her arrest when taken to prison, and the idea of the husband, at this time yet, about the same act, seem to be identical.

Can it be possible that these people never had sufficient enlightenment to teach them that to commit murder meant death by hanging? Can it be possible that they never heard of hangings—and many too—for the commission of this crime? Or is there such a deficiency of memory and intellect in these unfortunate people that borders upon imbecility?

The argument of the husband, if the wife is weak minded, would certainly be a powerful one, and bring her to a confession. If she is santanic, of course she will listen to the pleading and own up that she stabbed the old man to the heart.

We make allusion to this matter to show a most singular case of ignorance that at this day, and amid the surroundings above given, one would not suppose it possible to find.

Three Men Struck.

Yesterday's Johnstown Democrat says: The New York and Chicago Limited was about two hours late last night when it reached Johnstown, and entered the city at the tremendous rate of speed for which it is noted. Near the bluff above the passenger station it struck and instantly killed two men who were walking on the track and seriously injured a third. It appears that the men were walking on the westbound track toward this place when the Express dashed around a curve and struck them without a moment's warning. One body was laid in the baggage room at the Pennsylvania railroad station. A number of persons said they thought it was James Moran or Marron, of Woodvale. Another was taken to the Conemaugh and was supposed to be a man named Coleman.

His residence is not known. The third victim, whose name is also unknown, and who was seriously hurt was taken to Conemaugh. James Utzler, a brakeman on a Pennsylvania railroad train, said he saw the three men walking on the north track about ten minutes before the accident, but this was the last seen of them until after they were struck His train after this took the injured man and the dead man to Conemaugh as above noted.

HIS DEATH WARRANT ARRIVES.

The Legal Instrument That Sets the Day of Alfred Andrews Execution is now in Bellefonte.

On Thursday the DAILY NEWS announced (and it was the first paper in the State to do so) that Governor Beaver had signed the death warrant of Alfred Andrews and that the day set for his execution was Wednesday, April 9, 1890. On Friday evening the Sheriff of Centre county, Robert Cooke, Jr., received the warrant and a DAILY NEWS representative was shown the legal instrument the same evening. It is a handsomely executed specimen of pennmanship. The entire document—exclusive of the heading—which is very lengthy, is written, not a word of the whole thing printed. In the left hand upper corner is the seal of Pennsylvania, a large gold one, fully two and one half inches in diamater, and right above the saal is the signature, in plain, bold handwriting, of the Governor, James A Beaver, written in gold ink. Following we give the wording of the warrant:

THE DEATH WARRANT

PENNSYLVANIA S. S.:

James A. Beaver, to Robert Cooke, Jr., Esquire, High Sheriff of the county of Centre, or your successor in office, sends greeting:

WHEREAS, At a Court of Oyer and Terminer and general jail delivery, held at Bellefonte, in and for the county of Centre, in January, 1890, a certain Alfred Andrews was tried upon a certain indictment, charging him with the crime of murder in the first degree, and was on the fourth day of February, A D, 1890, found guilty of murder in the first degree and was thereupon, to wit: On the eighth day of February, A. D., 1890, sentenced by the said Court that he, the said Alfred Andrews, be taken hence to the jail of Centre county, whence he came, and from thence to the place of execution, and that he be there hanged by the neck until he is dead.

Now, therefore, This is to authorize and require you, the said Robert Cooke, Jr., High Sheriff of the county of Centre, as aforesaid, or your successor in office, to cause the sentence of the said Court of Oyer and Terminer and general jail delivery, to be executed upon the said Alfred Andrews, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 3 p. m., on Wednesday, the ninth day of April, A. D., 1890, in the manner directed by the seventy-sixth section of the Act of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth, approved the thirty-first day of March, A. D., 1860, entitled "An Act to consolidate, revise and amend the laws of this Commonwealth relating to penal proceedings and pleadings," and for so doing this shall be your sufficient voucher.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the State, at Harrisburg, this twentieth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety, and of the Commonwealth the one hundred and fourteeth.

By the Governor,

CHARLES W. STONE.
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

THE latest news from Delaware is not that its peach crop is killed by frost, and consequently is that it has publicly whipped a number of culprits. About the only time little Delaware gets her name in the papers is when her winning-post of peach tress do business.

A HORSE WHO CAN TALK!

Everybody has heard of a "horse laugh," but who has ever seen an equine gifted with the power of speech? Such an animal would be pronounced a miracle; but so would the telegraph and the telephone a hundred years ago. Why, even very recently a cure for consumption, which is universally acknowledged to be scrofula affecting the lungs, would have been looked upon as miraculous, but now people are beginning to realize that the disease is not incurable. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure it, if taken in time and given a fair trial. This world-renowned remedy will not make new lungs, but it will restore diseased ones to a healthy state when other means have failed. Thousands gratefully testify to this. It is the most potent tonic, or strength restorer, alterative, or blood-cleanser and nutritive, or flesh-builder, known to medical science. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh in the Head, and all Lingering Coughs, it is an unequaled remedy. In derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels, as Indigestion, or Dyspepsia, Biliousness, or "Liver Complaint," Chronic Diarrhea, and kindred ailments, it is a sovereign remedy.

GUARANTEED. "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine of its class, sold by druggists, under a printed guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will benefit or cure in every case of disease for which it is recommended, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded.

The only true practical

is one that promotes digestion, improves the appetite, cleanses the liver, purifies the blood, and stimulates brain and nerves without injurious reaction, and one that may be taken alike by adult or infant. Profane compounds, made of vile rum or bad whiskey, sweetened and flavored, under the titles of bitters, tonics, &c, produce effects far worse than the disease for which they are taken.

Vinegar Bitters is a pure tonic, a nervine without being narcotic, a purifier without poison, a liver tonic without purging, and above all, a life-giving stimulant without alcohol. The only medicine with such powers in the world.

A GENUINE TEMPERANCE BEVERAGE, far surpassing alcohol in any shape as a tonic it might be called

since it stimulates, invigorates and regulates digestion, nutrition, secretion, excretion, respiration, and all the functions whereby life is maintained—we literally take in vitality in spoonsful.

It is too much to assert that the equal of Vinegar Bitters does not exist, and no counterpart or compound with similar virtues has ever been known.

CALIFORNIA,

if remarkable for nothing else, would be immortalized by the production of the medicinal fruits, roots and herbs of which this Bitters is composed. Many of them used by the Indians and the medical profession in the treatment of chills and fevers, rheumatism, catarrh, consumption, neuralgia, headaches, liver complaint, kidney disease, jaundice, gout, piles, boils, skin diseases, &c., &c., too numerous to mention, but easily understood when the action of the Bitters on the vital functions is remembered. The discovery was partly accidental but the present

THE FREE DELIVERY.

Will Bellefonte Be Favored With the System. The Present Prospects.

The DAILY NEWS has several times mentioned the fact that the free mail delivery system is one of the probable conveniences that the people of Bellefonte will be favored with in the near future—possibly by the first of July. The Act regulating the free delivery system is to be found in the late edition of "Postal Laws and Regulations," Title 4, Chapter 19, under the heading of "Free Delivery Service," and is in full as follows:

SEC. 623, LETTER CARRIER POST OFFICES. —Th at letter carriers shall be employed for the free delivery of mail matter, as frequently as the public business may require, at every incorporated city, village, or borough containing a population of fifty thousand within its corporate limits, and may be so employed at every place containing a population of not less than ten thousand within its corporate limits, according to the last general census, taken by authority of State or United States law, or at any post office which produced a gross revenue for the preceding fiscal year of not less than ten thousand dollars: Provided, This act shall not affect the existence of the free delivery in places where it is now established: and provided further, That in offices where the free delivery shall be established under the provisions of this act, such free delivery shall not be abolished by reason of decrease below ten thousand in population or ten thousand dollars in gross postal revenue except in the discretion of the Postmaster General. (Act of January 3, 1887, $24 Stats., 355)

Although the population of Bellefonte proper is below ten thousand the number of persons represented by the families that get their mail at the Bellefonte postoffice is undoubtedly above ten thousand. The gross receipts for the past fiscal year were $9,984, or within $16 of the required ten thousand.

Application has been made for the free delivery system and it is believed that on a fair representation of all the circumstances there will be very little doubt but that it can be secured. Mr Feidler is now in Washington giving the matter some personal attention, and John I. Rankin, who is an official in the post office department, will use his influence in the behalf of Bellefonte, so that the prospects are very good for the establishment of the service.

The New Postage Stamps.

The new postage stamps were on sale on Saturday for the first time. The one-cent stamp contains a profile bust, after Rubricht, of Benjamin Franklin, printed in ultramarine blue. On the two-cent stamp is a profile bust, after Houdon, of George Washington, looking to the left, on an oval disk, printed in carmine. The three-cent stamp contains a profile bust, after Powers, of Andrew Jackson, on an oval disk, printed in purple. On the four-cent stamp is a portrait of Abraham Lincoln, after a photograph from life, three-quarters face, looking to the right. The color is chocolate. The five cent stamp has a portrait of General Grant, after a photograph from life, three quarters face, looking to the right; color, light brown. James A Garfield's photograph, taken from life, adorns the six cent denomination. It is a three-quarters face. The color of this stamp has not yet been fully determined upon. The ten cent stamp contains a portrait of Daniel Webster, after a deguerreotype from life, three quarters face, looking to the left, color, milori green. The fifteen cent denomination has a portrait of Henry Clay, after a daguerreotype from life. The color is deep blue. On the thirty cent stamp is a profile bust of Thomas Jefferson, after Ceracchi; color, black. The ninety cent denomination contains a profile bust of Commodore O H Perry, after Wolcott's statue. The color is orange.

Death in Boggs Township.

Mrs. Elizabeth Thorp, wife of Jackson Thorp of Boggs township, was taken snddenly ill which in a few days ended in death. She leaves a husband and four children, two boys and two giris, to mourn her unexpected departure. She left them, however, with the hope of being with Christ which for her is far better; and therefore, while they keenly feel her loss, they sadly, yet meekly submit to God's will. Her remains were interred in Messiah's church cemetery on the 19th inst., attended by a large concourse of friends and acquaintances. She was aged 49 years, 3 months and 18 days, having died on the 18th inst. Rev. J. Zeigler conducted the funeral services.

—In thirty-one words how many "thats" may be gramatically inserted? Answer: Fourteen. He said that that that that man said was that that that one should say; but that that that that other man said was that that that man should not say. That reminds us of the following "says" and "saids:" Mr. B., did you say or did you not say what I said? Because C. said you said you never did say what I said you said. Now, if you did say that you did not say what I said you said, then what did you say?—Exchange.

—We are informed that Mr. Cooper has severed his connection with the electric light works, in this place, and will retire this week, to be succeeded by a Mr. Kennedy from Alabama. We do not know what Mr. Cooper intends engaging in now but we would be sorry to have him leave Bellefonte and trust he will conclude not to. He has been a very efficient superintendent.

Death of an Estimable Lady.

On Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, the death angel visited the home of Mr. John Olewine, on Willow Bank street, and plucked from that happy household the beloved wife and mother. Mrs. John Olewine had been near death's door for many days.

She was afflicted with that dread disease, consumption, and although her death had been daily expected, yet when the dread moment came it brought great sorrow and gloom with it. Mrs. Olewine was a consistent member of the Metho: dist church and until the time of her illness a faithful attendant. She leaves one child—a little girl—and a husband to sorrow and mourn their loss which is undoubtedly her gain.

Mrs. Olewine possessed every quality that was necessary to make a home happy. She was kind, patient and sympathetic to every one. She had hosts of friends and was always held in the highest esteem by those that knew her. Mr. Olewine, being engaged in the mercantile business, his hours for returning home were very uncertain, but as soon as his day's work was done there was always an attraction, in the guise of his loving wife, that always drew him home and he was always certain of being greeted with a smile, a kind word or a kiss, but never a frown.

This is what makes a home, not merely a place to live, eat and sleep, but a place of joy, pleasure and rest. Such was the character [of this home. Mrs. Olewine bore all her suffering with patience. She was confined to her bed for the last fifteen weeks and never murmured nor complained. She always said it was God's will and she was satisfied:

Her maiden name was Christina Gummo. She was married to Mr. John Olewine on September 28, 1882, died February 22, 1890, aged 30 years and 19 days.

Daley in Washington.

A correspondent sends us the following clipping from a Washington paper:

Last night the "boys" of the John A. Logan command, U. V. U., were presented with a large floral badge of the order by Gen. W. Edgar Rodgers. Jno. A. Daley responded in behalf of the command.

He then adds: "John A. Daley is becoming quite prominent here. Last week he appeared before the House Pension Committee and again appeared before them on Tuesday as a committee representing "John A. Logan Command Veterans Union" in the interest of the per diem pension bill. He is also on a committee to wait on Mrs. Logan to request her to be present at a fair to be held in the near future. John I. Rankin, of the Auditor's office, is president of the Pennsylvania Republican Association.

Millheim Murmurings.

On next Tuesday Mr. J. A. Miller expects to vacate the pleasant residence on Penn street, owned by Mr. A. Walter, and will move into his own house on west Main street, which he has lately bought from the Wilt heirs, and which he has had repaired from cellar to garret. He has also put a steel roof on the house.

On Sunday morning, the 23d inst., Mrs. Oliver Van Valin had the misfortune to step on a large needle which was projected almost through her foot. Dr. Frank was called and after the needle was extracted it was measured and found to be one and a half inches in length. It was a very painful operation.

Mr. F. Royer harvested a small crop of ice on Saturday morning. He managed to secure a wheelbarrow load.

Large Barn Burned.

Thursday morning about five o'clock the large barn of Mr. William Grove, on Buffalo Run, about one mile and a half beyond Roopsburg, was burned to the ground with all the contents of grain, hay, cattle, etc., except his horses, which were gotten out without injury.

The fire must have been of incendiary origin as none of the family were up at the time. The loss will be fully five thousand, on which there was a small insurance.

Good—Courter.

C. R. Good, of Lock Haven and Miss Lulu Courter, of Blanchard, Centre county, Pa., were married in Williamsport on Tuesday of last week by Rev. S. P. Hughes. They took a bridal trip to Philadelphia to spend the honeymoon season and are now domiciled at the Bingham House, corner of Eleventh and Market streets. We extend congratulations, hoping that their path through life may be smooth and prosperous.

AUDITOR GENERAL'S REPORT.

What Centre County Pays Towards the Revenue of this Great Commonwealth.

We are indebted to Auditor General Thomas McCamant for the Auditor General's report of the revenue and expenditures of the State of Pennsylvania for the year 1889. It is an exceedingly interesting volume—well printed and bound—and worthy of careful preservation:

It shows that the revenue of the Commonwealth—from all sources—during the year 1889 was $8,465,399.22. The expenditures $8,182,847.44—showing an increase in the revenue over the expenditures of $282,551.88. On the 30th of November, 1880, there was a balance in the State treasury of $3,969,587,53. The revenue of the State is derived from taxation and we give the following as the amount contributed by Centre county:

He Had the Grippe.

Mr. W S Hopkins, better known as "Forgeman," of Howard, writes thusly to the Tyrone Herald:

For fear the HERALD readers might think that I was the fellow that broke the rope in Bellefonte on the 20th, I rise to remark that there is nothing of it. A double dose of the goldasted grip was the sole cause of my long silence. I warded it off a long time with victuals and plenty of exercise, but she wouldn't wait any longer and formed a hollow square and closed in on me from all sides. The result was six foot of a human wreck in a little less than no time. Reader have you been there? If not you have missed something easy to remember and very hard to forget, because it not only affects the body, but it impairs the intellect, goes for your religion and even threatens your patriotism. Why on election day I had to study a good while how I ought to vote. It kind of struck me that I used to be a Republican, and I made up my mind that if the grip had tackled all my other fine parts it should not get away with my politics, so I walked to the polls as usual, and put in a straightout ticket as heretofore, and I am happy to announce that that ticket helped to swell the "majority report" in Howard borough as of yore.

The works here are running on double turn. Orders are plenty, and the price from fair to middling. Just now there seems to be some trouble with the puddlers' helpers. They want what they term buggy money and a score wheeler, and threaten to go on a strike if it is refused them. I never thought there was much in strikes, but variety, you know, is the spice of life.

The postoffice blizzard hasn't struck Howard yet. Of course Mr. Wanamaker and his lieutenants know what they are about. But then them other fellows didn't wait half this long.

A Cure for Diphtheria.

The following remedy is said to be the best known, at least it is worth trying, for physicirns seem powerless to cope with the disease successfully. At the first indication of diphtheria in the throat of a child make the room close; then take a tin cup and pour into it a quantity of tar and turpentine, equal parts. Then hold the cup over a fire so as to fill the room with fumes. The little patient, on inhaling the fumes, will cough up and spit out all the membranous matter, and the diphtheria will pass of. The fumes of the tar and turpentine loosen the matter in the throat, and thus afford relief that has baffled the skill of physicans.—Scientific American.

—The section of country in and around Montrose, Pa., is either enjoying the most remarkable combination of winter and summer ever heard of or else there are some of the biggest liars running around loose in that neighborhood that ever was left to live. An exchange from Montrose says one day, "they are cutting ice and skating," and the next day comes out with the following: "Benjamin Hinds, stage driver, picked between New Milford and Montrose a bunch of blackberries which were as completely developed as in summer," Oh, my!

A Fine Entertainment.

Anyone who enjoys realistic scenes as produced by a powerful double calibre Stereopticon, will be most agreeably entertained by going to Bush's Hall to-night. The views are new to the public and have been selected with the greatest care by Prof. Scheckler whose discriptions of scenes presented, seem as lucid as the powerful illuminant which apparantly makes them reality to the eye. The impression after viewing these wonders, is left as strong as though one had visited the scene itself and as definitely portrayed to the mind. Last night, the scenes about Jerusalem were specially attractive and absorbing, one forgetting one's self in the maize of thoughts which such sights unveiled from the most distant centuries, must call up, yet not unfamiliar because perhaps, an ancient ruin or a Scriptural location has been already imparted to the receptacles of the memory and thus revived is rendered doubly real and lucid.

No one should miss this great exhibition, for in execution and in description, by the Lecturer, there is that which we recognize as merit of a high order. No better views were ever exhibited in this place.

"The Story of Johnstown."

We have received a copy of "The Story of Johnstown," the first edition of which is now ready and will be distributed as rapidly as agents can be supplied. The volume is worthy of the subject, and will be a welcome addition to thousands of well-selected libraries all over the land. There are many illustrations of the highest artistic excellence, which, cannot be duplicated anywhere or by any person, besides dozens of superb portraits. The printing is from new type, on extra paper; the typography is faultless and the binding exquisite. In short the book is all that skill, money and intelligent enterprise can make it.

—A distressing accident occurred near Trees Mills, Salem township, Westmoreland county, on Sunday evening which has cast a gloom over the entire community. About 5 o'clock Edward Black, a young farmer, 23 years of age, started on horseback for the cows which had strayed from home. Having proceeded some distance his horse scared and threw him heavily to the ground. His foot became fastened about the saddle and he was thrown with his head under the horse's heels. The animal in its fright, tramped Mr. Black on the head and face inflicting terrible and possibly fatal injuries. One eye was torn out, his nose crushed and one side of his face badly cut and bruised. He was found a short time afterwards lying by the side of the road in an unconscious condition and apparently dead. He was carried home where he died on Monday evening.

—The Lock Haven Democrat says; "James Schofield, of Bellefonte, just re-elected by the Democrats overseer of the poor, an office that he has held for several terms, was in the city to-day, en route for home from New York, where he went to attend the funeral of a sister. Mr. Schofield is a strong Democrat, a good official, a man of brains, an interesting speaker and a first-class citizen. He took dinner at the Central."
